CUBA.

A Spanish Threat to the United States-The Volunteers of Havana Propose Applying the Incendiary Torch-Piratical Craft in Course of Construction.

A large number of the following notices were received in this city on Saturday, by the principal merchants in the Cuban trade, by the Havana steamer Wilmington. On all hands it is considered to be a menace against this government and country, and anonymously emitted by the Spanish volunteers of Havana. By this time, after several days' suppression of the news, they will have learned that Spain is a republic, and that all the members of the Cabinet are pledged to the manumission of the slaves in Cuba and Porto Rico. The merchants of New York in the Cuban trade expect to learn from one hour to another of a Spanish revolution in Havana and Cuba generally.

Spanish revolution in Havana and Cuba generally.

Annexed is the notice referred to above:—

To the Spanish Nation:—

The Spanish Nation:—

The Spanish of Cuba—proud sons of that Spain who was former mistress of the world, and never allowed any foreign intervention—are sorrowfully impressed with the sad spectacle of the interference of England and the United States in matters pertaining to Cuba, and see in the diplomatic documents lately published the prospective ruin of the American dominions of the land of Daoiz and Velarde. The prejudiced reforms in question are to apply to Porto Rico, but are doubtless premeditated to extend to Cuba.

We protest with all our energy against this degrading and anti-national policy, and we unite ourselves to the National League and national manifesto published by the Ultramine Club, of Madrid; and we swear to act as the inhabitants of Numantino and Sagnitino did before we will stoop to the ineffable shame of being dominated and influenced by foreign Powers.

We are Spaniards always, and we desire that Spain shall reign over Cuba and Porto Rico in our generation, in our children's time, and of our children's children. Incendiary torches are being prepared and corsair craft are being prepared to prey upon the commerce of any ioreign nation who shall attempt to impose their will upon us in case that our government does not remember its duty of being Spanish before aught else.

Let all be on the watch and brave, and let our motto be the honor of Spain, never humiliated or subject—or death.

Long hye Spain, without traitors or cowards!

Daoiz and Velarde were two Spanish patriots who were killed at Madrid. May 2, 1808, deiend-lated to bring about a breach of the peace. It was mailed in the presence of two witnesses to the editor of the Cronista last Friday, and was on Satur day published in the Revolucion de Cuba, the Cuban editor of the Cronista last Friday, and was on Satur day published in the Revolucion de Cuba, the Cuban organ in this city:—

To the Editor of the Cronista of New York:—
I cannot allow myself to feel insulted at anything coming from you, the author of a pamphiet in favor of slavery in Cuba. I also beg to linorm you that I cannot either feel insulted by a man who causes to be arrested any bearer of a challenge to a duel, and thus invariably shirks the rules of the code of honor existing among gentlemen. I accuse you of affixing on the door of the Louvre restauran: in Havana a dueiling cartei, and when two Cuban gentlemen came on here from that city and offered to fighs, you evinced craven cowardice. You also relused to fight a duel with Mr. Leopoid Abreu, who was grossly insulted by you after agreeing to do so, and your seconds then said your drawing back was perfectly inexcusable. In consequence of this, Mr. Abreu, who is a well known rebel cuban, stigmatized you in the New York public prints as "an outrageous coward," "un solemnisimo cobarde." Lately you have refused to fight General Jordan, when you have insulted in your paper. I accuse you of being a mercenary hireling of the Spanish government, whose pen can always be purcassed. Two of your letters, written to Don Mariana Araiztegui, asking for money of that you would stop defending the Spanish goyctriment of Cuba in this country, and which letters have been duly published in the Recolucion de Cuba in this city, and which you have admitted to be authentic by a communication to the Diario de la Marina, Being myself the author of the counter protest published in the Herald, sent ont by the liberal Spaniards of this city to Ruiz Zorrilla, late Minister of the Spanish Cabinet, praying for the abolition of slavery, in opposition to that one sent by you and your friends to the said Minister, praying for the abolition of slavery, in opposition to that one sent by you and your release to the said Minister, praying for the abolition of Slavery, in opposition to that

"ST. JOHN'S GUILD."

The Work That Is Being Done by This Charitable Society for the Poor in the Fifth and Eighth Wards-An Appeal for Aid.

It is hardly possible to form a fair estimate of the amount of suffering which the intense cold and the cessation of many industries have produced during the Winter in New York. At no time since that when hunger and death sealed the season of financial disaster in 1867 has so much misery been distilled in the cup of bitterness which the poor are always compelled to drink. From causes painful even in their simple enumeration thousands of artisan's families have fallen from one step of destitution to another, till it seems as though the great arm of some popular impulse of charity must be extended to save them from the last resource of the Potter's Field.

In the Firth and Eighth wards such a charity has, ever since the first chills of Winter, been battling for these unfortunate ones, but though its sphere of action has been so circumscribed it has already in its exertions to ameliorate the severity of the suffering which has sprung to light on every hand, exhausted its resources. The scenes of horror which have been witnessed by the members of this association are almost beyond description. Some of them would draw tears from stone. In South Pifth avenue a mother was discovered with her babe, several days old, lying at her breast. They were both stark naked and only covered by a worn and filthy quilt, the gift of some soft-hearted woman scarcely less poverty stricken than herself. They were lying upon a few empty doxes. In Thompson street a young woman was turned out of doors, her furniture thrown into the street (non-payment of rent was the cause), and she was found with her baby dying at her breast, where she gathered it, not for nourishment, but to keep its little limbs and heart warm by the contact. In Walker street a girl of thriteen, whose mother was dead, was found sick with fever in a cellar that was flooded from the sewers each time the tide set up the river. All of these cases received prompt aid from that noble charity of which we have spoken—St. John's Guild. The little girl last mentioned was constantly attended by a physician, but died in a iew days. One more case of singular destitution has come to the knowledge of the Herald. It was that of a lady, whose son was the partner of a famous New York banker and formerly lived in affluence in Twenty-third street, near Pifth avenue, in, a house built for her, but reverses came, and all her fortune was swept away. She never appealed for aid, but was found by the visitors of the Guild, who at once recognized her as a lady who had been well known for her many charities. She was found emaciated and feeble in an attic in Chariton street. This was some time ago. She was removed to a room up town, where old friends came in carriges to see her, and never knew how destitute she had been or that she was relieved by the untiring workers of the Fifth and Eighth wards.

destitute she had been or that she was relieved by the uniting workers of the Fifth and Eighth wards.

St. John's Guild is now itself in extreme embarrasment for want of money and necessaries to carry on its work. Every effort has been strained to meet the requirement of midwinter nights and days. Sickness has been widespread, and drugs and medical attendance are always expensive. Fuel, too, ate into the scant treasury, and warm cloths had some times to be purchased. The suffering has not died out with the expiring Winter. In fact it is hardly diminished. The 150 visitors have contributed till they can give from their siender means no longer. As every one knows, the officials are never paid. Now they are calling to the kind hearted in the greatety for aid, and the "city of charity" will not turn a deaf ear to the appeal of this non-sectarian charity. They ask for money, for food, for medicine, cast-off clothes. They can use a thousand things of trivial value, and even a three-cent bunch of kindling wood will bring a moment's warmth and cheer to the celiar or attic of the sick and dying. Such money as may be contributed may be sent to C. V. B. Ostrander, President of the Merchants' Fire Insurance Company, 149 Broadway; G. J. N. Zabriskie, Cashier of the People's Bank, corner of Canal and Thompson streets; J. L. Davis, of Sheldon & Co., 677 Broadway; N. P. Hosack, 15 West Twenty-first street, and Rev. Alvah Wiswall, Master of St. John's chapel, Varick street. Packages may be sent to St. John's chapel.

THE SOUTH BROOKLYN HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Two More Men Arrested as Accomplices. Yesterday the police of the Third precinct arrested two more parties on suspicion of being concerned in the robbery of Thomas O'Brien, near concerned in the robbery of Thomas O'Brien, near the corner of Van Brunt and Sackett streets, South Brooklyn, on Saturday night. The accused gave their names as John McNally and John Cagen. It was stated by the police that Mr. O'Brien, who is a stevedore, was paying off his men in the liquor saloon of Moses Bulger, at the corner of Van Brunt and Degraw streets, and so reported in the HERALD of yesterday. Mr. Bulger appears to think this a reflection on his place of business, and desires it to be understood that Mr. O'Brien was not in his saloon on Saturday night.

VIRGINIA STATE BONDS.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 15, 1873. A conference of the State bond holders with the joint committee of the Legislature assembled in the Senate Chamber this afternoon. Nearly $2,000,000 were represented. After a full and free interchange of views the conference adjourned until Tuesday evening, at which time the joint committee were requested to present some plan for the adjustment of the public debt.
