HERALD which relate thereto:—

HERALD COMMISSIONER—Your views upon this subject, Mr. President, I. am convinced, are the views of the American people. But do you anticipate no trouble on acceunt of this St. Domingo, Sumana Bay Company?

The Prissident—None in the world, I suppose the men of that company are practical business men, and will not needlessly get involved in expensive difficulties. I expect, too, in the course of the next ten or fifteen years, that this company will have made such progress in developments of the great resources of that fine country that our government and people will annex it, as a bargain, at ten or fifteen millious of dollars, when we might have secured it a year ago for a million and a half—I mean the Dominican Republic. In any event we desire peace, and expect no trouble with Hayti.

COMMISSIONER—The fulfilment of your ent, though the American lever of annexation as very nearly cured by the cold bath of Alaska Here the conversation ended upon the St. Domingo question. The future will tell how far General Grant has been right in his prognostication The Power of the Press. [From the Messager Franco-Americain, March 14.] It is now well known that the press is a fourth power in the State. The HERALD is more convinced of this truth than any one else, and it is not content to have simply a reporter or a correspond there, so that it might be represented by a kind of minister plenipotentiary or ambassador. This Wednesday had an audience of the President, in order to receive some explanations upon policy which the government proposes follow. General Grant repiled with all the deference due to such a personage, and we shall probably perform a most agreeable duty to our readers by reproducing a portion of the conthe substance of the interview referred to.) The HERALD Commissioner, then interrogated the Presi dent as to the tour which he had intended to make in the South. The President stated that he very much regretted being compelled to renounce this journey on account of official duties and other causes as the effect might have been very bene ficial. His personal affairs, however, called him to St. Louis, but he will probably not pursue his journey as far as California for the same reasons that have caused him to renounce his journey in the South. Upon the question of Utah the President Liciared, with much emphasis, that the laws must be executed, and that was the only condition under which the Mormons could expect to live in

THE HERALD AND ITS ENTERPRISE.

[From the Elizabeth (N. J.) Herald, March 13.] WHERE'S THE NEXT WORLD TO CONQUER?

Our namesake across the river is a wonderful fellow: he was delighted when there was a lost Livingstone in an African jungle, and away went a ommissioner at a moment's notice, with carte bianche to draw ad. lib. until Livingstone was drawn out; and he was drawn out so far as he would consent to be. Then Spain was a thorn in the side of Cuba, and off goes Mr. O'Kelly. The HERALD is not confined to one pathunder. Mr. O'Kelly will drown the shamrock this St. Patrick's Day in a sugar vat. if his life, of which O'Kelly seems so regardless, is spared. Then there was "special" to turn up from the lava beds of Captain Jack, with a formidable page of double-leaded matter of Jack's coming and his going, and of the prospect of peace or chances of war. Do these HERALD Commissioners wrap themselves up in the columns of their paper as Kirby used to wrap himself in the American flag at the Bowery Theatre, and so disarm tomahawk of Captain Jack, lassoo of Captain General, and the fevers and implements of war of Central Africa? To a verity there is a protection in the NEW YORK HERALD; it must be, as Mark Twain would say, the elixir of life.

Our present point with our namesake is that in to-day's issue of that sheet President Grant takes the place of Captain Jack and of Livingstone-the President of the United States has been caught and was most successfully interviewed. We will excuse the "Commissioner" when he tells Ulysses that the "late inaugural has given general satisfaction to the country." The Commissioner had a deep game to play, and so started diplomatically. To make a long story short, the President does not se any need for a change in the Cabinet. Boutwell roes to the Senate, but his policy will be carried put. The President thinks we have financially been a success, and so he is in favor of "let well does not expect trouble with the Spaniards; he teels that our sympathy-sympathy is a cheap commodity-ought to go to Cuba, and he thinks that pefore another year Spain will see that Cuba may ro on its own hook without detriment to either a monarchy or a republic in the old land. In the matter of St. Domingo the President does a big thing for the Samana Bay boys: the years this country will take the bay off the hands of the boys at ten or fitteen millions. How Mr. Rowland Hazard's eyes beamed with gladness when he read the prophecy of Ulysses. Rowland It was that manipulated the trade, and he is secretary of the company.

The Herald Commissioner further extracted

The Herald Commissioner further extracted from the President that his private affairs need some attention; he is going to St. Louis; he cannot go South, nor can he go to California, where the "Herald Commissioner" urged him to go, and urged him, too, to call and see Mr. Brigham and all the Mrs. Brighams on the way. The President cannot go and see them, but Brigham and the ladies will learn from the Herald to-day that they will be expected to obey the laws. We will say "amen" to that.

"amen" to that.

The President does not apprehend any more trouble in Louisiana. Perhaps he thinks there has been trouble enough. For ourselves, we do not see that the Guif State is out of the muddle yet. been trouble enough. For ourselves, we do not see that the Guil State is out of the muddle yet.

And so the opinions of the President are before the country to-day; they will be telegraphed far and near; the broker of San Francisco, as he lunches on raw ham, will read the Herald Commissioner's stery. Brigham, calling on Mrs. Young No. Pitty-nine, will shed a tear at the prospect in store for the one husband and many wives, as though the wives had not woe enough. The cable, too, will bear the news across the big sea, and Gladstone, as he calls with sad and not glad heart on Her Majesty to receive her commands, will regret that the failure of a "ministerial measure" in England should be the death of the Ministry. "See, Your Majesty," quoth Gladstone, 'in America they survive the failure of pet schemes of the President. Ulysses wanted St. Domingo; ne sent a commissioner down there; the commissioner reported invorably, but the country reported adversely; the measure was lost, but the government did not go out; there was no general election." The Queen, mayhap, tells Gladstone to bear up; that, perhaps, by and by there would be a change in the British Constitution.

But we have got away from our starting point—our namesake across the river. The HERALD is great, and forty cents a line, cash down, is the HERALD's profit.

THE HEBALD ALMANAC.

[Newport (R. L.) Argus and Spectator.] The "HERALD Almanac" for 1873, just issued, is by far the best and most comprehensive Almanac that we have seen. It is really what it purports to be, a Financial, Commercial and Political Register Its pages are repiete with the most accurate information of the following subjects, viz :- Missing Heirs, Mariner's Guide, Hurricane and Cyclone New Cautienary Weather Signals, Statistics, Weekly Price List, Cotton Market, Agricultural Statistics, Astronoumi cat and Mean Time Tables, Law Department Political Reform, Foreign Governments, Mail and Postal Department, &c. The HERALD has no half-way work in any of its undertakings. Price

[Dubuque (lowa) Daily Times.] Twenty-five cents is an astonishing small sum to pay for a 200 page pamphiet, containing a calendar, eclipses, census returns of population of each State and principal cities, election returns for Congressmen; time of elections and meeting of Legislatures; record of events of 1872; statistics of farm produce, live stock, &c.; army, navy and civil service register; national debt statistics; finances, prices of gold, stocks, cotton, flour, &c., for the past year, &c., &c. Yet this is the price of that encyclopedia of information-400 "NEW YORK HERALD Almanac" for 1873.

TELECRAMS TO THE NEW YORK HERALS.

The following special despatch to the HERALD has been received from our correspondent in the British capital :-London, March 14, 1873.

WHAT TRANSPIRED AT THE INTERVIEW, The facts which transpired during the interview between the distinguished leader of the tory party and the Sovereign are, simply, thus:-Mr. Disraeli indicated to the Queen, in the most respectful manner, the difficulties he would have to confront if he assumed office as Premier, even if he were able to secure the aid of an efficient number of supporters in the House of Commons, considering the Parliamentary position of his opponents, and inasmuch as it was absolutely necessary for him to consult with his political friends, he asked for a brief delay, and begged Her Majesty to accord it to him.

EARL DERBY AND THE GREAT COMMONER IN CONSULTATION.

Earl Derby arrived in this city from Paris to-night. His Lordship sought an interview with Mr. Disraeli immediately, and had a pro-

It was positively asserted at the Carlton Club this afternoon that one thing is settlednamely, if the conservatives take office Mr. Disraeli will not be the Premier; that Mr. Disraeli will inform the Queen to-morrow that it is impossible for him to form a Ministry, and will suggest that the responsibility be entrusted to the Earl of Derby, who has the support of the old whigs, Lamberton's Bank of Franklin, Pa., See $100,000 of Its Money Destroyed-Particulars of the Tragic Affair.

This community was shocked this morning be youd expression by a report of the suicide of on Thirteenth street, Franklin. The injured man lingered in great agony till some four hours after the occurrence, when he expired. It appears that Anderson, who is a man of about thirty-four years of age, came to the bank at the usual hour this morning and unlocked the safe and remove the contents to the accustomed places, and had everything arranged for the transaction of business they had to do, and left without noticing any fifteen minutes after the last person was noticed coming out of the bank Anderson, the ashier, was seen stepping hurriedly the door of the banking house to the street. When he reached the street his pace quickened, and finally he commenced to run for dear life, having one of his hands thrust in his coat pocket. He hadn't got far away when some persons, astonished at the action of the cashier, noticed smoke issuing from the main entrance of the bank and, supposing the house was on fire, ran across the street and entered the room. Here they found several members of Mr. Lamberton's family, pale with fright, but reserving sufficient present of mind to extinguish the flames, which were issuing from the grate and rising to some wooden work on the wall above. As soon as the flames were subdued it was discovered the flames were subdued it was discovered that the grate had been piled up with green-backs, bonds, securities and other valuable papers. As quickly as possible these were drawn out and water sprinkled over them; but it was found that most all of the heap was in a charred state, and that some crumbled to ashes and was blown about the bank by the wind that came in through swinging doors. What valuable papers and money that lay in the middle of the basket which the crazy the bank by the wind that came in through swinging doors. What valuable papers and money that lay in the middle of the basket which the crazy cashier had piled in were lound to be little injured. But this was of meagre value in comparison with that destroyed. In the meantime a number of gentlemen had followed Anderson down Thirteenth street to his residence, which is three squares from the bank. When he reached the front door he turned the knob excitedly, and, finding the door locked, left the steps and ran in a side entrance through a small alley, Heentered the house, and, finding his wife in the sitting room, handed her a letter, saying to her, "I am going to do an awnil deed." He had a pistol in his right hand and his wife, supposing that he was about to kill somebody, closed the door and came over to him. She caught hold of his arm and finally grappled the pistol, but the frenzied man shook her off again. She caught the weapon but Anderson pushed violently away through the open door leading to the yard and stepped out, put the muzzle of the pistol to his lorehead and fired. His wife uttered one scream at the discharge of the weapon and leli fainting in the arms of lady friends who at that moment arrived at the scene. Her husband dropped the pistol from his hand, staggered and fell, while a small, purple stream flowed from a wound in his temple.

The contents of the latter to his wife are not yet made known, but the substance is that he was carrying overdraits for several persons to a large amount, and that he was determined not to leave any trace, and therefore destroyed the bonds and money. On his desk in the banking house he leit a letter in a conspicuous place, the contents of which went on to state that all special deposits and bills receivable had been destroyed; that his death was that of suicide; that his family were rulied and disgraced forever

It is difficult to night to approximate the loss by the bondre of bonds and money, but a rough estimate puts it at $100.000, of which sum there will be reco recognized and saved perhaps forty thousand dolars. This includes Mr. Lamberton's individual and government bends, the balance being securities. This afternoon a despatch was sent to the United States Treasurer requesting that an expert be sent on immediately to examine what remains of the burned money and bonds. Until this party arrives and makes an examination the full extent of the loss can only be conjectured.

rives and makes an examination the full extent of the loss can only be conjectured.

Mr Lamberton had the utmost confidence in Anderson. He was a sober, industrious man, and his employer trusted him as he would one of his own family. There is no way of accounting for the action of the unfortunate man, except upon the theory of his having been a defaulter to an amount estimated at between $25,000 and $30,000. Lamberton was about transferring his bank to R. A. Cochran, formerly of the first National Bank, C. W. Gillfelan and others. The books were to be balanced and the concern transferred this week. Anderson, knowing full well that his crime could not longer be concealed, took this course to hide it if possible.

The opinion is expressed freely by business men in this city that the unfortunate man has been used as a catspaw by persons whose names cannot be at present discovered. The cashier had not been known to use money in succulation or otherwise, it is said, except for household expenses, and it is generally conceded that whatever he defaulted somebody else is responsible for.

An inquest was held over the body to-night, when, after hearing the testimony of a number of witnesses, an adjournment was decided upon till to-morrow. The dreadful nature of the crime has cast a gloom over the city of Frankiin, and the sad ending of a promising life is the theme of general conversation.

KEY WEST, March 14, 1873.

I have to-day received the following official report of the engagement between the insurgents and the Spanish forces at Quacamayas, pointedly admitting a defeat of the latter. The substance of the document was made public in Havana yesterday, March 13, and requires no further comment to illustrate the tactics of the patriots :-

ATTACK ON THE BATTALION BAILEN-THE SPANIARDS DEFEATED.

As a part of the Battalion Bailen was taking position at a point called Quacamayas, six miles from Jiguana, it was received by a light musketry fire by a small band of insurgents. Reinforced by sixty men they attacked the rebels, who feigned a slight resistance, until suddenly a strong force under Calixto Garcia appeared, with the intention of involving the Spanish forces, compelling them to fight while retreating, which they state to have effected in admirable order, repelling the insurgents' attacks of the machete with the bayonet.

SPANISH ADMISSION OF AN INSURGENT TRIUMPH. When reinforcements arrived the enemy retired, leaving two men dead upon the field. The Spaniards, without stating the number, confess to losses, and the wounding of Lieutenant Peula, commanding the vanguard. WHY RUBALCABO WAS EXECUTED.

Private advices from Puerto Principe attribute the summary execution, without trial, of the insurgent General Maria Rubalcabo, a Cuban poet and journalist of repute, to have been in revenge for the defeat of a small column which left Puerto Principe under the command of Major Mustera, not far from the city. This column was attacked and surrounded by the insurgents, the Major and one soldier only making their escape and returning to Puerto Principe.

The Saturday Review, in an elaborate notice, pronounces it one of the treshest and most original and, at the same time, most interesting of American novels.

THE PARTING WORDS OF ADOLPHE MONOD TO HIS FRIENDS AND THE CHURCH. October, 1838, to March, 1896. (Translated from the Fifth Paris Edition. P vol. 12mo. Cloth. $1 50.

These touching and editying addresses, published under the title of the Addeux of Adolphe Mugocl. lished under the title of 'The Adieux of Adolphe Mogod.'
The speaker was a French Protestant pastor, eminent for piety and for his extraordinary abilities as a preacher. The pulpit from which he spoke, and it is sometimes the most effective of all pulpits, was a death-bed, around which, Sunday by Sunday, he gathered as many members of his little flock as the siek-room would hold, and received with them the Holy Communion, and spoke to them of such subjects as the 'Regrets of a Dying Man.' — Edward Myrick Gouldburn.
