The Jewish Times argues in behalf of the Hebrew Benevolent and Orphan Asylum.

The Hebrew Leader strikes up its lyre on the "Reawakening of Nature by King Solomon in the Song of Sengs":-

The Winter is over; Flowers are bedecking the fields; The birds commence to carol; The voice of nature becomes loud on earth.

All of which is very pretty and very Scriptural; but it is difficult "to see" the above sorts of things in this vicinity about these chilly and blustering days.

The Jewish Messenger touches on "Roumania," "Fair Play," "Mixed Worship" and

The Sailors and the "Land Sharks."

Jack is not noted for thrift. He is brave and generous, faithful to his obligations and credulous of sincerity in others. But after his hard work is done, his exposure to hardship and danger over, he is apt to squander his hard earnings with lavish hand and surrender to dishonest custody the wages which should provide for his own comfort and the support of those dear to him. Since sailors first came ashore with money in their pockets there has not ceased to be "land sharks," who, in the character of boarding masters, have relentlessly robbed Jack. They not only "cleaned him out," but have established a system of "tick" for him, which mortgages his future industry. He is made to run up a bill as honest as those the old Tammany Ring charged to the Court House fund; then, by the aid of Fourth ward rum, the almost or quite unconscious seaman is sold and delivered to a shipmaster whose craft is ready to begin her voyage, the boarding master getting payment of his very honest account, and Jack getting the chance, by a long term of toil, to pay for a few days' spree. In the hands of the "land shark" Jack is no more able to take his own part than a worried mouse to thrive under the care of an active Grimalkin. . Congress in its wisdom undertook to protect the sailors from the sharks. It established in New York and other ports Shipping Commissioners, in whose offices alone masters of American ships engaged in foreign trade could ship men and pay off seamen. The Commissioners are allowed to grant sailors certificates by which they may discharge their actual debts, the certificates being paid ten days after the debtor has started on his voyage. This does not satisfy the hungry boarding masters, who have combined to resist the law by embarrassing and overawing the Commissioner. So violent have they been in their proceedings that the Commissioner has found it necessary to lay the case before the Grand Jury. Indictments have been found against a large number of these men, who are mostly keepers of boarding houses near the wharves. About fifty of them spent Friday night in the Oak street police station, and were yesterday brought to the City Hall, when Recorder Hackett allowed them to give bail for their appearance in Court to answer the indictments when called. It is clear that these men must submit to the law. If, on trial, their guilt is established, there is no doubt the Court will fully discharge its duty in inflicting such penalties as shall convince the culprits that there is vitality in the law and an earnest determination on the part of the judiciary to protect sailors against the rapacity of their false friends-the boarding house sharks.

Against a Carlist Committee. LONDON, April 26, 1873.

The London republicans have undertaken the prosecution of the Carlist Committee in this city, who are collecting funds for Don Carlos, as they claim, in violation of international law. THE CAUSE OF COMPLAINT.

The cause or complaint of the London republican party originated as follows:-The Westminster Gazette, under request of the Carlist Committee, published the following:—

The Carlist Committee for England, at a meeting held on Wednesday, February 19, at its temporary office, No. 6 Stoane street, Belgrave square, passed the following resolutions:—

That His Majesty Charles VII., by the law of such the law of inheritance, is the only claims and by the law of inheritance, is the only claimant who has legal and legitimate claims to the throne of Spain; that his principles are respect for the law, the maintenance of order, the support of religion and morality; that a large number of Spaniards have already proclaimed him King; that by the abdication of Frince Amadeo of Savoy the throne of Spain is vacant, and consequently charles VII., without exposing himself to the accusation of disturbing the peace of his country, or of forgetting civil without exposing himself to the accusation of disturbing the peace of his country or of fomenting civil war, is fully entitled to make good his claims; that his accession to the throne would put an end to the revolutionary and unsettled state of Spain, and that his government—essentially conservative and just—would promote commerce and industry; that the establishment of the Republic will open the way to the emmbers of the International, the public propagators of evil and the sworm enemies of society. The Carlist Committee, appealing to the lovers of right and justice and to the criends of monarchy, have the honor to announce that a public subscription has been opened in aid of the cause of His Majesty Charles VII. of Spain.

Arrival of the Perit with One Hundred

Cases Saved from Her Cargo-The Wrecking Operations Unsuccessful. The steamer Perit arrived in the Bay yesterday and put into dock just to southward of Fulton terry. She was chartered by the White Star company and the Coast Wreeking Company for the purpose of freighting her with the cargo of the ill-fated Atlantic. She has been at Prospect, the scene of the disaster, but her mis-sion has not been quite as successful as was anticipated. At the office of her owners, No. 5 william street, it was found yesterday thus she has brought but 100 cases of the cargo, but even the na-ture of her merchandise could not be ascertained, as it is unaccompanied by bills of lading or a mani-fest. The Captain of the Perit states that the weather has been so rough at Prospect that it is now impossible to proceed with the wrecking operations. It is understood that the Perit will not return to Prospect. She is now moored in the Erie basin, foot of Van Brunt street.

THE BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.

The Coming Three Ball Carron Match for the Championship of the World-Ubassy, the Great French Pinyer, to Meet Our Good Shots.

Billiard experts and those amateurs who find delight in rolling spheres of ivory over the smooth green clothed table, will be pleased to hear that the advent to our shores of a coterie of celebrated players is expected shortly. For considerable period M. Rudoiph held ray in New York as champion at the three ball carrom game; but now there comes one who is said to be mightier than he-a professional billiard player whose performances have won for him the title of champion billiardist of the world. Pierre Carme, on his appearance in New York, won much applause from native knights of the cue, but his star was eclipsed by Rudolph. The Dions, Cyrille and Joe, struggled hard for priority, and Melvin Foster did his best to acquire the title of champion, as did also Deery and others, whose ambition was to optain possession of the diamond one and the title of champion. Now, five or six of the players in America who are most accomplished at the three ball carrom game are to appear at the grand tournament, which will be held in this city during the first week in June. The tournament, which is to take place at the Academy of Music, Steinway or Irving Hall, will last six days. Upon every day of the week during that period there will be matinées, at which the most celebrated professional billiard players will exhibit their skill. Garnier, Maurice Daly, John Deery, Joe Dion and young Mr. Cook, the champion of England, will assist. The three ball carrom, or French game, will be played during the day and evening, and prizes will be offered severalty of $500, $300 and $200 to the most skilful competitors. In addition a large silver cup, something after the style of the annual yachting cup, of pure silver, will be the guerdon that the victor will receive. The games are to be 300 points up, and the duration of each will be about two hours. The prizes are offered by Mr. William H. Collender, lately the partner of the deceased Mr. Michael Phelan, whose name is knewn wherever billiards are in vogne. Mr. Collender is the originator and organizer of this tournament, and through his endeavors a committee of gentlemen prominent in science, literature and art will officiate as the jury during the tournament. The great feature of the contest will be the appearance of Mr. Francois Ubassy, the champion of the world at the three-ball carrom game. Mr. Ubassy has lately been engaged in New Orleans in a great billiard contest with Miller, the champion of the Southern States, in which the Frenchman proved the victor. Mr. Ubassy is a native of Marseilles, and a townsman and schoolellow of Leon Gambetta, the great republican statesman. In 1866 Mr. Ubassy offered to play any man in France at the three ball carrom game for a stake of 1,000 francs, but could find no one willing to gecept the gage. He became the Parisian billiard lion, and in 1867 he had won such renown that he was urged to meet Charles Berger. The two great billiardists played a game of French carroms, 4,000 points up. Ubassy won by 622, making an average of seven and one-half, his largest run being eightyduring the first week in June. The tournament, which is to take place at the Academy of Music,

TROTTING AT FLEETWOOD.

Two trotting events came off at Fleetwood Park yesterday, and though the weather was not propitious for such sport, there was a fair attendance of spectators. First on the programme was a sweepstakes of $300, mile heats, best three in five, in harness, with owners to drive. Entered for this were R. G Anderson's sorrel gelding State of Maine, William Lovell's bay mare Lady Lovell, and Mr. Edlott's brown mare Dutch Maid. The latter was distanced in the first heat, but it required six was distanced in the first heat, but it required six to decide the contest, State of Maine scoring the first, third and sixth, the fifth being a dead heat. What little interest the race created was manifested in the last two heats.

The second event was a maich for $200, mile and repeat, catch weights, between Manee's gray mare Crazy Jane and Lovell's brown gelding Barney Kelly, the former in harness and the latter to wagon. The gelding was the favorite two to one before the start, and seldom has the turf, in small events of this character, noted such disappointed men as were the friends of Barney Kelly after his defeat. The judges of the day were Messrs. Van Ness, Kimmey and Crawford. The following are summaries of the sport:

YANKEE HUMOR.

Grace Greenwood at Association Hall-Non-Appearance of Miss Faithfull-Lecture on the Characteristics of Yankee Humor.

The hall of the Young Men's Christian Association was nearly filled yesterday afternoon by an audience that was derived for the most part from the female sex. It had been announced that Miss Emily Faithfull and Grace Greenwood would be Emily Fathfull and Grace Greenwood would be the speakers at yesterday's matinée, but the cold wind and the clouds of dust were not friendly to the asthma that has been the fathful companion or the latter during her stay in this country, and therefore Grace Greenwood, previous to the delivery of her lecture, announced with regret Miss Fathfull's inability to be present. The lecturess, in presenting herself to her audience, revealed a more youthful figure and manner than might have been expected by the unsophisticated observer, who can remember for how long a period Grace Greenwood has occupied a place in the public eye. Her attire was a black velvet robe, and her hair, was dressed in the prevailing fashion of maidenhood, and pendant from her delicate ears glittered the gilded ornaments of the period. The subject of the lecture was "yankee Humor and its Characteristics," a lecture that has recently been delivered in the city. The imitation of the Yankee dialect was admirable, and the stories told illustrative of New England manners, customs, thrift and quiet wit brought out a cherus of silver-toned laughter that showed how keen was the gentle feminine car for fun. Now and then the stories went to the very ridge of propriety; but the ladies did not seem to mind this, and accepted everything with gladness that came from the fair lips of the lecturer. the speakers at yesterday's matinée, but the ART MATTERS.

Mr. Sherwood's Gallery. It is not often that such a chance is offered to the public as that now presented of inspecting the pictures constituting the gallery of Mr. John H. Sherwood. They are to be seen at that gentleman's residence, No. 522 Fifth avenue, and are 122 in number. The reason for their approaching sale be discovered in Mr. Sherwood's projected visit to Europe, where he intends to remain several years. They were, for the are the best examples thus far sent from the studios of the artists whose autographs they bear. The entire collection has been on exhibition (by card) at Mr. Sherwood's residence since last Tues day, and will be sold at auction next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, by the Messrs. Leavitt, at their salesroom at Clinton Hall. There will be no

Scarcely a member of this collection but deserves re-examination; but we shall confine ourselves to only a few this morning. In this country, where the nude is almost entirely abjured, and prudery shuts her eyes to even pure and beautiful nakedness, Cabanel's "Eve After the Expulsion from Paradise" will not be so openly admired as it would be abroad. And yet it is a powerful and most exquisite piece of painting, lovely in its ideal, most exquisitely elaborated and executed with a purity of touch and motive cuted with a purity of touch and motive that cannot easily be too highly praised. Eve lies at full lenth, partly on the left side, and partly on the back, a nearly full front view being presented. Her heavy hair, rich with its own lair brightness, is meshed and tangled in long glittering tresses behind her shoulders. Her head is thrown back, and the eyes are closed and partially shaded with the left hand. The right arm upraised, passes ever the right side of the face and upper part of the head, and is pressed against the trunk of a tree. The limbs are stretched upon the ground. The whole attitude is exceedingly difficult to reproduce with naturalness, but the success with which the task of doing so is achieved is wonderfully perfect. The flesh has that plink firmness and elasticity which belong to youth. There is lulness without grossness, and a delicately delicious animalism without voluptionsness. Still, the entire attitude is less suggestive of tragic abandonment, such as might be supposed to have overwhelmed our first mother the tive of tragic abandonment, such as might be sup posed to have overwhelmed our first mother the posed to have overwhelmed our first mother the moment after expulsion, than of languor and weari-ness of soul, and the loss of interest in even the tive of tragic abandonment, such as might be supposed to have overwhelmed our first mother the moment after expulsion, than of languor and weariness of soul, and the loss of interest in even the memories of lost paradise.

One of the finest specimens of Guy that we have ever seen is "The Little Stranger," in which the sun shines, tempered through azure curtains, upon a crimson carpeted bedroom, containing a miraculously painted bedstead, wherein recities a young mother, who has just passed through the agonies of a second confinement and is beginning to taste the delight of convalescence. Beside the bed stands a nurse, with motherliness beaming out of every fold in her double chim—a nurse evidently with a long retrospect of happy deliveries to look back on, and whose diary, did she keep one, might brim with details of triumphant lyings-in. The child who has hitherto been the only one sits at the foot of the bed caressing the gorgeously swaddied new comer, whose slightly purple visage and utterly hairless head denoie the shortness of its arrival. The keynote to the picture is found in the handsome and humiliated doil which lies atterly unregarded on the carpet with its face to the ground.

"Sunday Morning," by A. Slegert, is a simple cottage lyric, treated with great feeling. A girlish mother sits, on Sunday morning, by the open window, watching her infant sleep. Her hands hold the Bible open, but her thoughts are on her child, and she sees perhaps its father through her tender musings. People wending churchward are seen through the unshut window, and give a sort of marginal reading to the sweet artistic text. The expression upon the sleeping baby's face is indicated with singular felicity—it is so full of the quiet, half-conscious rapture of dreaming babyhood. We confess, too, to a partiality for that away-from-the-world sentiment of which "Fairfield Lawn, Isle of Wight," by H. and C. Shayer, is full. The trees, burdened with deep greenness, tower up into each other and lottily interiace; a drove of sheep huddle the accomplished expert, of 31 Union square, and constitute, in the opinion of that gentleman, the first competitive sale of fine paintings by American artists in which an effort has been made to gain for our home art just recognition. The claims for our home art just recognition. The claims upon our space this morning preclude more than a mere mention or the fact that the reception took

The Indian Peace Policy.

WASHINGTON, April 26, 1873. It is said at the War Department that General Crook is strictly carrying out the peace policy in accordance with the instructions of the President, through General Sherman, issued two years ago. these instructions it is specifically stated that all peaceable Indians reservations are to be protected by the military from outside interference, while those who refuse to go upon reservations are not only to be prevented as lar as possible from committing' depre dations, but are to be summarily punished for mis-deeds. The instructions are the same to all com-manders in Indian localities, and these are given as an exposition of the peace policy as practised under the orders of the President.

The Bill Creating a New Board of Emigration Signed-Appointments and Pardons by the Governor.

ALBANY, April 26, 1873. The Governor to-day signed the bill creating a new Board of Emigration. The new law provides that within ten days after its passage (that is after the Governor's signature is affixed to it) six Commissioners shall be appointed by him, two to hold office for two years, two for four years and two for six years. The Presidents of the German Emigrant Society and of the Irish Emigrant Society of New York are to be appointed as additional Commis-sioners, but they "shall not have the right to vote upon the appointment or removal of subordisioners, but they "shall not have the right to vote upon the appointment or removal of subordinates."

After the expiration of the terms of office of the first commissioners appointed under this law their successors are to be appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, each to hold office for six years. Vacancies are to be filled in a like manner. The term of office of each of the present Commissioners is to cease at the end of five days after the filing of the oath of the new Commissioners in the Secretary of State's office. The law provides that the Commissioners shall not be required to support "any person" (any emigrant), capable of earning a livelihood, for a longer period than two years, ont this proposition will not take effect until the 1st of May. The Commission are empowered to appoint an agent in all incorporated cities at a salary not to exceed $300 per annum.

The Governor has appointed the following railway policemen:—On the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg Railroad, Lester Bushnell, of Richland, Oswego county; on the Utica, Ithaca and Elmira Railroad. Ira M. Judd at Ithaca, D. F. Osborne at Varna, Clayton E. Rowley at Cortland and George W. Stanley at Horseheads. Also the following deputy inspectors of steam boilers:—James A. Caldwell, of Watkins, Schuyler county, for the Twenty-seventh Congressional district, vice Thomas B. Whitemarsh, whose term has expired; Tebias H. Blackwell, of Kings county, vice William Dodge, whose term has expired. The Governor has granted pardons as follows:—To Michael Sallivan, of Butfalo, imprisoned for assault and battery; to Jacob Nisler, of New York, sentenced to Sing Sing for life for murder in the second degree. Nisler is in the last stages of consumption.

GENERAL HANCOCK ON AN INSPECTING

TOUR. BALTIMORE, April 26, 1873.

Major General W. S. Hancock, United States Army, and Colonel Wharton, his aid, arrived at Barnum's Hotel this morning, having returned from an inspection of Fortress Monroe. They will inspect Fort McHenry to-day and then proceed to Washington. While at Fortress Monroe General Hancock delivered the diplomas to the graduating class of the Artiliery School for 1873, and made an address to the class.

THE FRUIT PROSPECT IN MICHIGAN.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 26, 1873. J. E. Chamberlain, President of the St. Joseph Fruit Growers' Association of Michigan, announces the result of a tour of observation through the farms in that region. So many peachbuds are alive that sanguine fruit growers estimate the crop o peaches at one-third of a full crop. The peach trees killed by the severe cold were mostly old and sickly trees. The apples never looked better. The pear trees are uninjured. The grapes promise an abundant crop. The strawberries are in splendid condition, and will yield a full crop. The cherries and plums promise equally well.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 26, 1873. As the southern bound train on the Memphis and Louisville Railroad approached Tresevant station to-day a lady named Mrs. Ellis attempted to cross the track, and was run over and instantly killed.

THE GRAPHIC.

THE GRAPHIC.

The Daily Graphic appears to have made a tenstrike. So far, the publishers have been unable to supply the demand and, as it continues to improve in both its illustrations and reading matter, it can hardly fail to become popular and profitable. Its conductors show that they fully understand how to make an attractive paper. Its illustrations are iresh and vigorous, its articles crisp and spicy, and there is just enough of the sensational about it to make it readable for all classes. In brief, the Graphic, aside from its illustrations, is decidedly the most high-toned, gossipy, wide-awake, newsy and readable evening paper in the city. Success to it!—The Chicago Tribune.
